

HEATING DESIGN SERVICE

Installers can now turn to Newlec for a complete choice of heating options. With such a range of options, all designed to co-ordinate with one another, Newlec is able to meet most domestic or commercial applications, backed by the guarantee of quality and next day availability. To complete its heater offering Newlec has launched a dedicated Heating Technical Helpline and Scheme design service.

By telephoning 0845 123 6539 installers can talk to heating experts who will be able to advise them on the type and size of heaters they need for any type of installation. All that is required are a few basic details including:

- Is it a domestic or commercial installation? What are the dimensions of the rooms to be heated? What are the lengths of any outside walls?
- What the rooms are to be used for and where are they located within the building?
- To take account of local weather conditions, in what part of the country are the heaters to be installed?

Once all the information has been compiled and processed, the design service will be able to tell you the type and size of Newlec heaters you will need and where they should be located in a room, plus any other specific information that may be required.